

Print ISSN: 0078-2122

<http://www.brepolsonline.net/loi/nms>

Editors:

Joanna Martin (University of Nottingham)
Rob Lutton (University of Nottingham)

Nottingham Medieval Studies was first issued in 1957 and published its 50th volume in 2006. It was and remains an interdisciplinary journal for studies of European history and literature from Late Antiquity through to the Reformation. The journal also features articles in related fields such as archaeology, art history, linguistics, musicology and philosophy. Nottingham Medieval Studies is published as a single annual volume. Starting with volume LIV (2010) Nottingham Medieval Studies is published by Brepols. Contributions on all aspects of medieval studies are welcome.

Nottingham Medieval Studies est une revue pluridisciplinaire destinée à l'étude de l'histoire et de la littérature européennes de l'Antiquité Tardive à la Réformation. La revue comprend également des articles sur l'archéologie, l'histoire de l'art, la linguistique, la musicologie et la philosophie. Toutes les contributions sont écrites par des spécialistes renommés. La revue est publiée en un seul volume, une fois par an. Commençant avec le volume LIV (2010), Nottingham Medieval Studies est publié par Brepols.

Miniature from Gautier d'Arras, Ille et Galeron,
from University of Nottingham MS
WLC LM 6, fo. 158r (s. xiii in)

Highlights:

- Studies of European history and literature from Late Antiquity to the Reformation
- Multidisciplinary approach
- Online archive available

Discipline(s):

Medieval History, Archaeology, Language & Literature,
Art History

Language(s):

English

Other journals of interest:

The Journal of Medieval Latin
The Mediaeval Journal
Mediaeval Studies
Viator
Viking and Medieval Scandinavia