BIBLIOTHÈQUE AUGUSTINIENNE

Cette collection a pour but de fournir aux lecteurs de langue française une édition complète des œuvres de saint Augustin, destinée à remplacer les traductions désormais dépassées du XIX^e siècle. Chaque volume donne, outre une introduction substantielle, le texte latin et la traduction française en regard, avec variantes et notes. Les introductions et les notes complémentaires abondantes, qui font le point des recherches actuelles, ainsi que les tables détaillées en fin de volume, font de ces ouvrages de véritables instruments de travail au service de la recherche augustiniennne internationale.

Augustin d'Hippone Contre Fauste le manichéen Livres XXII-XXXIII

Martine Dulaey, Isabelle Bochet, e.a. (éd.)

Dans le volume 18/C de la Bibliothèque augustiniennne, on pourra lire une traduction nouvelle de la dernière partie, les livres XXII-XXXIII, du Contre Fauste le manichéen, qui est une des œuvres majeures d'Augustin. La traduction part du texte établi en 1891 par J. Zycha (CSEL 25/h), qui n'a toujours pas été remplacé, et a été révisé selon les normes de la collection. Les différents livres font l'objet d'une étude approfondie, dont les résultats sont exposés dans les multiples introductions, notes de bas de page et notes complémentaires en fin de volume.

Faustus of Riez On Grace

Guido Stucco

Faustus was a Gallic representative of what has been referred to as 'semipelagianism'. In his De Gratia, he fiercely opposed the Augustinian view of Grace and Predestination that had been upheld by Lucidus, a presbyter who possibly misunderstood Augustine's thought. Faustus did not open new ground about these contested doctrines, but put significant road-blocks to their possible extreme trajectories.

Arnobius Junior Praedestinationatus

Guido Stucco

For the first time in English, the Praedestinationatus represents a moment in the fifteen-century old theological conversation in Latin Christianity about the topics of grace, predestination and free will. Written as a response to Augustine's growing theological influence, this book should not merely be regarded as a work of apologetics, despite the author's intention, but as breaking controversial new ground because of his claim that a small circle of heretics was acting as a 'fifth column' within the Church.

INSTRUMENTA PATRISTICA ET MEDIAEVALIA

Research on the Inheritance of Early and Medieval Christianity

Instrumenta Patristica et Mediaevalia publishes reference works and seminal studies on patristic and medieval authors and subjects. Founded by Dom Eligius Dekkers (†1998) as Instrumenta Patristica, its initial aim was to offer a series of tools for scholars of patristic studies, with an emphasis on manuscript catalogues and bibliographical directories of major authors such as Origen, Augustine, and Jerome. As Instrumenta Patristica et Mediaevalia, the series has widened its scope to include medieval Christianity. It now welcomes all studies that are instrumental to research on the inheritance of Christianity before 1500 AD.

Les sermons du manuscrit de Vienne (ÖNB Ms lat. 4147)

Interrogations sur leur unité, leur datation et leur origine avec une nouvelle édition critique et une traduction annotée des vingt-deux sermons Leroy

Jean Meyers (éd.)

En 1994, François-Joseph Leroy publiait vingt-deux sermons inédits, qu'il attribua à un contemporain d'Augustin. Depuis cette édition provisoire, la recherche ne s'est guère penchée sur ce corpus. Le Groupe de Recherches sur l'Afrique Antique (GRAA) a entrepris une nouvelle édition critique de ces 22 sermons, accompagnée de la première traduction annotée, et rassemblé autour de ce corpus les contributions de différents spécialistes, historiens et littéraires.

Procopius the Christian Sophist Catenist, Compiler, Epitomist

Dimitrios Zaganas, Jean-Marie Auwers
& Joseph Verheyden (eds)

The rich literary production of Gaza in the fifth and sixth centuries AD has received quite some attention in recent scholarship. Yet the figure and work of Procopius the Sophist, as author of catenae, compiler, and epitomist of patristic exegesis, have remained relatively unknown and under-explored. This collection of essays delves deeply into Procopius' exegetical work.

The Christian Metaphysics of St Maximus the Confessor

Creation, World-Order, and Redemption

Torstein Theodor Tollefsen

This book offers an investigation into the basic structures of St Maximus the Confessor's thought in the context of ancient and late antique philosophy. In the final part of the book, the author applies Maximian metaphysics to a major ethical challenge in our days: the environmental crisis, thus proving that late antique philosophy still has relevance today.

STUDI E TESTI TARDOANTICHI

Profane and Christian Culture in Late Antiquity

This series accommodates studies on literary, philological and historical questions relating to the fourth- to seventh-century Greek and Latin worlds. It pays special attention to transformations of the classical heritage, and to interactions of the profane and Christian traditions in shaping the multifaceted culture that was handed down to the Middle Ages. For publication in this series can be considered monographs, thematic miscellanies, sustained textual studies, commentaries, and critical editions with facing-page translations.

JUDAÏSME ANCIEN ET ORIGINES DU CHRISTIANISME

Cette collection a pour vocation d'accueillir des travaux d'historiens, de philologues, d'archéologues et d'épigraphistes consacrés aux Judéens de la Palestine et de la Diaspora du VI^e siècle avant notre ère (début de l'époque perse) au VII^e siècle de notre ère (fin de l'époque gréco-romaine ou byzantine). Pour la période comprise entre le I^{er} et le VII^e siècle de notre ère, elle repose sur une définition large du judaïsme ancien, allant des prêtres (judaïsme sacerdotal et synagoga) aux chrétiens (judaïsme chrétien) et aux rabbins (judaïsme rabbinique).

"Who is Sitting on Which Beast?" Interpretative Issues in the Book of Revelation

Proceedings of the International Conference held at Loyola University, Chicago, March 30-31, 2017

Edmondo F. Lupieri & Louis Painchaud (eds)

Although they do not all share the exact same point of view on the Apocalypse of John and on the solutions to its interpretative problems, the contributions gathered in this volume all question the received ideas in one way or another. What they have in common is a regard for the Apocalypse of John as a text strongly rooted in the Judaism of its time, and they place great emphasis on interpreting the text through attention to its author's use of the Jewish Scriptures.

Analogical Identities: The Creation of the Christian Self Volume 2: Self-catholicization, Meta-narcissism, and Christian Theology

Nikolaos Loudovikos

The present second volume of the trilogy deals with the specific content of this concept of "Analogical Identity" as a new hermeneutic retrieval of Christian anthropology in its relation with its historical roots and in the light of modern Philosophical and Psychological thought, to which we thus introduce some new conceptual tools. At the same time, a theological criticism of modern Philosophy and Psychology is initiated, and some new anthropological concepts of the theological provenance are proposed.

Participation in Heavenly Worship From Apocalyptic Mysticism to the Eucharistic Sanctus

Sverre Elgvin Lied

In Participation in Heavenly Worship, Sverre Lied explores how the relations between the earthly and heavenly realms were understood within the context of Christian worship during the first three centuries CE. He argues that the idea of participation is an aspect of Christian worship that may be traced back to Jewish Christian apocalyptic mysticism, and shows how this concept was preserved and developed during the following centuries.

Bede and the Beginnings of English Racism

W. Trent Foley

This book examines how the Venerable Bede constructs a racial order in his most famous historical writing, Ecclesiastical History of the English People, a remarkable eighth-century work known for how it combines myth and history into a compelling, charming narrative of the English conversion to Christianity. Yet Bede’s History also disturbingly deploys Scripture’s tropes and types, many of them anti-Jewish, to render unflattering sketches of some of Britain’s “races” (gentes)—especially the Britons.

Friendship as Ecclesial Binding A Reading of St. Augustine’s Theology of Friendship from his In Iohannis Euangelium Tractatus

Phillip J. Brown

In the age of Augustine, within the classical structures of society, nothing was more valued than friends and friendship. Augustine was an innovative thinker and friendship represents a good example of his flair for reconfiguring its framework into an ecclesial setting.

Mandaean Symbolic Art

Sandra van Rompaey

Mandaean Symbolic Art examines the structure, function, and symbolic associations of the artwork within the major Mandaean religious scrolls. It acknowledges the artwork itself as a fundamental component of nine scrolls, in some instances occupying over half of the manuscript. Acting in conjunction with the Mandaic text, the illustrations are designed to communicate a complex body of religious knowledge.

Stemma codicum

La «méthode Froger» d'édition critique

Dominique Poirel

Réédition introduite et commentée de l'ouvrage de dom J. Froger «La critique des textes et son automatisation». Si la seconde partie du livre de Froger examine bien quelles opérations d'une édition critique peuvent être «automatisées», la première partie contient une théorie remarquablement claire, équilibrée, complète et rigoureuse de la méthode stemmatique. C'est cette première partie, toujours neuve et stimulante, qui est ici rééditée, accompagnée d'une ample introduction et d'une postface.

Constructing Saints in Greek and Latin Hagiography

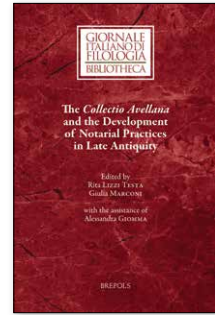

Heroes and Heroines in Late Antique and Medieval Narrative

Koen De Temmerman, Julie Van Pelt, Klazina Staat (eds)

This book explores representations of saints in a variety of Latin and Greek late antique hagiographical narratives, such as saints' Lives, martyr acts, miracle collections, and edifying tales. The book examines techniques through which the saints featured in such texts are depicted as heroes and heroines, i.e., as extraordinary characters exhibiting both exemplary behaviour and a set of specific qualities that distinguish them from others.
